

Werner Bamberger joined the management of Brückner Servtec

Werner Bamberger was born in Salzburg (Austria) and finished his training as an electrician in the year 1971. After his graduation he worked in an energy supply company as an electrician to extend his competent knowledge. After two years in his career he studied electrical engineer at the HTL in Braunau/Austria and in 1977 he joined Brückner as an electrical engineer.

Most of his time with Brückner he was in the frontline of line installations and line commissionings. He has earned an excellent reputation from customers around the world for his engineering knowledge and his personal integrity. In 1996 he succeeded Mr. Kurt Ghirardini, his mentor and friend for many years, as the manager of the main department for electrical engineering.

The control system of a fully automatised biax film stretching line is a kind of backbone of the whole production. And for this backbone, Werner Bamberger is Brückner's chief surgeon!

When the former co-managing director of Brückner Servtec, Gerhard Wagner, left the Brückner Group last year, Werner Bamberger was appointed to succeed him in this position, in addition to his present job.

We welcome Werner Bamberger in our team and are looking forward to a successful cooperation!
